A SCOPA member showing off her savings after Group Sharing

"Sometime back, I wanted to buy a piece of land in my community and I didn't have money, I went to our SCOPA Group and borrowed Shs 600,000 which I used to pay for the land. With my savings which I got today when our group shared, I will invest in planting coffee on my land. I thank Kisoboka Africa for empowering us to save and transforming our community" Gertrude, member Kisoboka SCOPA at Hope Bulemere Primary School

Gertrude (quoted above) is a member of a SCOPA group at Hope Bulemere Primary school, which is among the six groups that have share so far. Immediately after sharing, the groups started a new cycle and more new members are joining because of the realized benefits of saving. Pictured below are members sharing.

SCOBA Members graduate from Kisoboka Business Training Program

It's sharing season season and most groups we support in rural Lwengo Uganda have come to the end of their saving cycles. During the past one year, most of them have been going through business trainings, learning how to start their own income generating projects or run the ones they have better for growth.

Our team has been empowering them because, we believe the best way to solve poverty is not through giving people handouts but by empowering them to create their own sustainable sources of income. That is why we go beyond just starting saving groups to also equipping the people we serve with business skills to thrive.

Seen above is our Team Leader and Programs Coordinator awarding certificates to women graduates of our business training component of the Kisoboka SCOPA program. We equip the people we serve with business skills to start their own income generating projects and break the poverty cycle.

What Shadrack, a Teacher & a Kisoboka Link Person decided to go into when schools closed in Uganda

Shadrack(in picture above) is a head teacher of one of our Partner schools and doubles as a Kisoboka link person in his community. During this period when schools have been closed, he has concentrated on his farming projects. He grows coffee, sells it & saves part of his income with Kisoboka School Community Bank. He is an inspiration to many in his community & as a link person for Kisoboka Africa, he is empowering many to SAVE, INVEST and create sustainable prosperity for their families.
