Kisoboka Africa starts the Chicken model project to help beneficiaries lift themselves out of poverty

Kisoboka Africa has started a new project of empowering rural communities to solve poverty by giving them chicken for rearing. In this first phase, each household will receive 25 hens, technical training in poultry management and feeds to ensure the success of the project. As we launched this KISA Chicken Development Model to boost household incomes of SCOPA members in rural Lwengo, our team visited some of the beneficiary households to conduct a baseline assessment. This will help us evaluate and measure the impact of the project as it progresses.

For the next 17 months, these Kisoboka beneficiaries will be participating in the chicken development model pilot to improve their economic status.

Bukumbula SCOBAs break their past record and save up to $6000

We congratulate our beneficiary SCOA groups at Bukumbula upon finishing their cycle & saving more than $6000. This is far more than they saved last year which shows a big improvement as more community members embrace the SCOA program for development. To date, about $ 160,000 in total has been saved by rural Kisoboka SCOA members & this has helped a number of them build small enterprises that are changing their lives.
