Our COO Thomas Nsubuga Takes Center Stage in New York, USA: Pitching the Kisoboka Africa livelihood project called 'Chicken Revolving Model'

Nsubuga, Our Chief Operating Officer at the Resolution Project

In a dynamic presentation in New York, Thomas Nsubuga represented Kisoboka Africa, introducing the transformative 'Chicken Revolving Model' at the Resolution Project. This initiative provides households with 25 hens for egg production, aiming to boost livelihoods and ensure food security. The eggs serve as a continuous source of income, lifting the living standards of participating families.

Thomas's pitch was a vision of prosperity for our beneficiaries, returning home with a passion to empower more families for a brighter future.

money from the School Community Bank

We continue to be amazed by the impact the school community banks(SCOBA) are having in the rural communities we serve. This couple in the picture above have been part of the Kisoboka SCOBA at Nakalanzi since 2021, and during that period, they have saved & used skills learnt to start income-generating projects that have transformed their economic status. They are now building their dream house.

Nakalinzi School Community Bank Shares Out and Members Graduate in Business Skills

It was an inspiring moment at Nakalinzi School Community Bank! After a year of savings, members came together to receive their money and celebrate their successes. The joy of watching those who once struggled now save for a whole year is priceless. We are also happy to report that the members graduated from our business skills training program, ready to launch & sustain their income-generating ventures. Each one now holds a certificate of completion! Big Congratulations to them!
